Chihli Forces Surrender As Fengtien Captures Chinwangtao

DEFENDERS OF SHANHAIKWAN ARE FORCED TO GIVE UP

Double Assault Near Tientsin Is Planned

FENG PREPARING

Christian General's Headquarters At Fengtai

(Eastern News Agency)

Tientsin, Oct. 30.—It is authoritatively reported that this afternoon the Fengtien forces completely captured the Chinese town at Chinwangtao.

The Chihli troops, some 22,000 strong, which had congregated at and near the piers at Chinwangtao and which had no chance to get on board the transport-vessels, have all been disarmed by the Fengtien forces, while about 2,000 Chihli troops have sailed from Chinwangtao aboard transport-vessels. Their destination, however, remains unknown at the present time.

It is understood that those Chihli troops, which have hitherto been besieged in Shanhaikwan, have all surrendered to the Fengtien troops.

TROOPS SURRENDER

(Eastern News Agency)

Tientsin, Oct 31.—Yesterday morning, the Fengtien troops furiously attacked the Chihli forces in the districts of Erhlangmiao and Anmingsi with the consequence that the latter's positions there were broken through, the Chihli troops in the above sectors being driven back towards Sikwan of Shanhaikwan.

Consequent upon the fall of Chinwangtao yesterday afternoon, all the Chihli troops in the Shanhaikwan area became completely isolated and finally surrendered to the Fengtien troops.

FENG PLANS ATTACK

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, Oct. 31.—General Feng Yu-hsiang, who has been considerably stimulated by the victory of the Fengtien troops in the sectors of Chinwangtao and Shanhaikwan, upon receiving a telegram from General Chang Shao-tseng about the result of his consultation with Marshal Wu Pei-fu, is alleged to have come to the conclusion to carry out his attack upon Marshal Wu's troops in the Yangtsun sector.

General Feng, on the night of the 29th instant, removed his general-headquarters to Fengtai

As a consequence, General Hsiao Yao-nan, Inspector-General of Hpeh and Hunan, has now decided to postpone the transportation of the Hupeh troops to the North.

STABBING FRAY ON SEWARD RD.; JAPANESE HELD

Two Sailors Arrested After Attack On Chinese; One Admits Charge

Two Japanese sailors are under arrest in connection with a disturbance in Seward Road near Kungping Road early this morning which had its climax in the stabbing of a Chinese by one of the sailors.

Police Sergeant Beer of Hongkew Station was riding in a motor car on Seward Road shortly before 1 o'clock in the morning when he was attracted by a crowd of Japanese sailors who were apparently having an argument with some Chinese.

As Sergeant Beer left his car and approached the crowd, one of the sailors drew a knife and stabbed a Chinese, Mo Wen-sih, 1570 East Seward Road, in the abdomen. The police sergeant attempted to arrest the sailor, but another Japanese sailor, J. Nakamura interfered, and while Sergeant Beer was struggling with the latter, the assailant of the Chinese escaped.

From information obtained by the police from Nakamura, it was ascertained that the man who had done the stabbing was S. Kamamura, who resides at the Japanese Naval Club, 53 Baikal Road. Kamamura was taken into custody later at the club, and admitted the stabbing, saying that he had used his pocket knife.

The Chinese was taken to St. Luke's Hospital, where it was said that his condition may prove serious.

The two Japanese sailors were turned over to the Japanese Consular Court. They will be arraigned today.

GEN. CHWANG, LU'S PROTEGE, BACK HERE FROM JAPAN

Defeated Fukien Chief Expects To Stir Up Trouble

TUAN FAVORED

Mukden And Chekiang Warlords Want Him To Lead Army

General Chwang Tso-ping, for the harboring of whose Fukien forces in Chekiang war was declared between Kiangsu and Chekiang, returned from Japan to Shanghai yesterday, it was learned from a reliable source last night. He returned by sea and was taken ashore by a private launch. He is now residing in a house in French concession.

The return of General Chwang was considered significant among political circles here in view of the change in the political situation in North China. Well-informed observers expect further unrest among the ranks and files of the old Chekiang army as a result of his return.

Contrary to reports in the Chinese press, it was learned here definitely that Major-General Lu Hsiao-chia, son of the Chekiang Marshal, is still in Shanghai, conferring with leaders of the army formerly under his father.

Reports from Lootien indicate that the former forces of Yang Hua-chao, who have been re-enlisted by the Kiangsu Army and stationed there, have become somewhat recalcitrant in view of the Northern coup d'etat. It is said that a section of these troops have already thrown away the red band and declared themselves men of the National Army, which General Feng Yu-hsiang has organised up North.

CHANG'S AGENT LEAVES

Mr. Yang Ta-hsih, who was sent here by Marshal Chang Tso-lin at the outbreak of the Chekiang-Kiangsu war, returned to Mukden yesterday by sea. Before his departure, he received the following telegram from Marshal Chang:

"General Lu Yung-hsiang and I have this day telegraphically urged Marshal Tuan Chi-jui to assume the supreme command of the National Army. Beside circularising the various provinces, we have sent special telegrams to Generals Feng Yu-hsiang, Hu Ching-yi, Sun Yo, Tseng Shih-chi, Yen Shih-shan, Sun Yat-sen and Tang Chi-yao.

"We have also received definite

STUDENT PENS PEACE APPEAL IN OWN BLOOD

Plea To Warring Tuchuns Is Received From Chinese In America

Some idea of the sensation produced among the Chinese students in the United States by the news of the war in China was gained yesterday from the receipt in Shanghai of a closely written manuscript of 34 pages constituting an appeal to the various generals to stop the war and all written in human blood.

The writer of the manuscript was Dr. Wu Tse-jui of Hinghwa, Fukien province who is taking a graduate course in medicine in the United States. He is a graduate of the Peking Union Medical College and went to the United States last year as a self-supporting student, first taking a course at Syracuse University.

The manuscript is written in Chinese characters and was sent to Dr. R. Y. Lo, editor of the Chinese Christian Advocate of Shanghai.

ROB

ARMED ROBBERS GET $2,000; TWO RAIDS FAILURES

Desperados Flee As Occupants Of Houses Blow Their Police Whistles

One armed robbery, which yielded its perpetrators clothing, jewelry and money to a total value of $2,000, and two other robbery attempts which were foiled, appear on the police records for yesterday.

Mau S. Ching reported to police of the Louza station that eight men, seven of whom were armed with pistols, had raided his home at 342 Avenue Edward VII and stolen clothing, money and jewelry worth $2,000. One of the men knocked at the front door. When an amah answered, he asked to see the occupant of the house. The amah left to call her master, and as she started up stairs, four men, three of them armed with pistols, followed her. Four other men entered the ground floor at the same time. After searching all of the occupants of the house and ransacking drawers and chests, the eight men left by the front door and escaped.

Five men, one of whom was armed with a pistol and another with a long knife, entered the home of a retired mill worker in a Chinese village off Pingliang Road Thursday night. The man with the pistol fired one shot which went wild. A neighbor, hearing the shot, began blowing a police whistle, and the robbers, frightened, ran out of the house without taking anything. Two police constables who ran up in response to the alarm were unable to trace the robbers. A .32 discharged cartridge was found in the house. The bullet had embedded itself in a wall.

Another attempted robbery was foiled at 422 Taku Road, when five men, two of them armed with pistols, who had entered a house at that number, were also frightened away as the occupant blew a police whistle.

LA FOLLETTE SEEKS PACTS WITH DAVIS TO TIE VOTE

Progressives Try To Co-operate With Democrats

ODDS MOVING UP

Eight To One Is Now Offered In Favor Of Coolidge

BY J. J. UNDERWOOD

(Special Cable to The CHINA PRESS)

Washington, Oct. 31.—The Democrats and the La Follette Progressives, with only four more days of campaigning to go, are trying to get together in several states in a last-hour compromise to deadlock the vote in the Electoral College and throw the election into the House of Representatives.

The betting today is eight to one in favor of Coolidge, a change from [illegible] to 1 in favor of Coolidge yesterday.

CONSERVATIVES ARE ELATED AS VICTORY GROWS

Liberals See Necessity For Reform In Electoral System

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 30.—Conservative headquarters are in the highest spirits and the opinion is expressed that the results of the election are very satisfactory, fulfilling anticipations.

A high official of the Liberal Party declared that the returns overwhelmingly demonstrate the need for such reform of the electoral system as will deliver the country from the peril of minority representation.

The rout of the Liberal Party has created consternation in political circles. Even Conservatives regret the eclipse of their historic opponent, but Liberals staunchly declare that the eclipse is only temporary. They suggest that the disaster is due not so much to the fact that the country voted anti-Liberal as to the fact that it voted anti-Labor. Undoubtedly many voters, who are normally Liberal, voted Conservative in order to keep out the Laborite.

Liberals are of the opinion that the informal pact was of more advantage to Conservatives than to Liberals as Conservatives did not vote for a Liberal so freely as Liberals voted for a Conservative.

BALDWIN'S COMMENTS

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 30.—Mr. Stanley Baldwin has issued a message to the electors saying that the result of the election has more than justified the profound confidence he has always had in the political judgment and common-sense of the British people when confronted with an issue of grave importance.

Big Rail Merger In U. S. Assured

REPUDIATION OF 'RED FLAG' SEEN IN BRITISH VOTE

American Newspapers Point Moral To American Politicians

(Reuter's American Service)

New York, Oct. 30.—The American newspapers generally interpret the British elections as a definite rejection of the "Red Flag" and point the moral to American politicians.

GERMANY SURPRISED

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Oct. 30.—The magnitude of the Conservative victory in Great Britain and the overwhelming Liberal losses have surprised the German press which unanimously agrees that a Baldwin Premiership will not mean any change in Great Britain's foreign policy as far as Germany is concerned and that the fall of the Labor Government will not detrimentally affect Anglo-German relations, except possibly with regard to commercial negotiations.

MACDONALD TO RESIGN BEFORE SESSION OPENS

Premier To Give Opponents Time For Formation Of Cabinet, Belief

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 30.—Mr. Ramsay MacDonald in a speech at Cardiff said that they sometimes found that defeat was the finest thing that could happen to any Party. In view of the state of trade and the general outlook he did not envy the Tory Party their job. He added that Labor's poll of 5,000,000 votes was a wonderful manifestation of its power.

Well-informed Laborites now express the opinion that Mr. MacDonald will resign before Parliament meets and thus allow time for the formation of a Conservative Cabinet which will submit the King's speech to the House of Commons.

One objection to Mr. MacDonald's immediate resignation is his intention fully to inquire into the Zinovieff letter.

The Laborites are not too disappointed at the result of the election. They point out that the aggregate Labor vote showed a marked increase, but the luck of the election was against them as regards representation.

They declare that Labor, as the only alternative Government, must sooner or later gain an absolute majority.

At Least Four Years Of Conservative Rule Seen

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 31.—The justifiable resumption that the country is faced for at least four years with a stable government, is received with complacent satisfaction by the Conservative press which, speculating on the composition of the first completely representative Cabinet since prewar times, is giving Mr. Stanley Baldwin the choice of Mr. Austin Chamberlain, Lord Birkenhead, Sir Robert Horne and possibly Mr. Winston Churchill, in addition to his last year's lieutenants.

The Liberals roundly denounce Laborites' responsibility for instituting a reign of unbridled reaction which, in the words of the Daily News, will come when "Mr. Stanley Baldwin establishes Imperial preferences, and inserts the wedge of protection for selected industries; when Col. Amery spends vast sums on fourteen new cruisers and on the naval base at Singapore; when the Lords' veto is restored; when Mr. Winston Churchill casts his adventurous eye on the world in order to devise blood and thunder schemes."

The Liberals cite the results as an argument in favor of the reformation of the electoral system, and point out that with a combined poll of 8,500,000, the Liberals and Laborites secured under 200 seats, whereas the Conservatives get 400 with 7,500,000.

The Liberal press seeks consolation in the predicament in the recovery after previous debacles like in 1900 and 1918. On the contrary the Daily Herald is jubilant at the Liberals "suicide." It declares that the three-party system is a nuisance, and it would have taken Labor a long time to destroy it by gradually beating the Liberals—"fortunately, Liberals have saved us the trouble."

Grateful Citizens Express Appreciation To Volunteers

A grateful citizenship, several thousand strong, turned out yesterday afternoon at the race course to express its appreciation of the services given by the Shanghai Volunteer Corps during the trying times of the last few weeks.

And nearly 2,000 men of Shanghai, the personnel of the Shanghai Volunteer Corps, defenders of the international settlement, marched proudly by their fellow citizens of Shanghai, glad that they could render the service of keeping hordes of Chinese fighting men from the boundaries of the settlement.

Mr. S. Fessenden, chairman of the municipal council, in a short talk, expressed the appreciation of the citizens. Then the men passed in review.

Mr. Fessenden's note of appreciation follows:

"Colonel Gordon, officers and men of the Shanghai Volunteers Corps and of the Municipal Police: The people of the International Settlement of Shanghai of all nationalities appreciate in the highest degree the invaluable services which you have rendered to the Community during the critical period through which it has passed, and from which it has emerged unscathed because of your patient and untiring vigilance in its defence.

"It is eminently fitting, therefore, that those whom you have served so faithfully and so well should desire to give public expression of their gratitude for the protection and immunity which your cheerful and ready response to the call of duty in time of danger has given to them.

"Not only as the representative of the civil authorities of the International Settlement but on behalf of the entire Community, I

ENDOWMENT INSURANCE — WHOLE LIFE INSURANCE

JOHN W. DAVIS—

Democratic Candidate for President of the United States, strongly endorses life insurance. He says:

I think enough of life insurance myself to be able to say that I carry enough of it to care for such estate as I may leave—pay all the required taxes thereon—and independent of my other resources, care for those dependent upon me, in the event that I should be taken away. That is good sense, good business, common honesty. No man charged with responsibility for the welfare of others should leave them unprotected against the contingency of his death. The life insurance I carry I regard as the most certain and valuable part of my estate, and it is dedicated to a sacred purpose.

Mr. Sowerby Talks On Hunting At Meeting Of Science & Arts Society

The first meeting of the season of The China Society of Science and Arts was held yesterday afternoon in the hall of the Royal Asiatic Society. A brief business meeting preceded the lecture on "Big Game and other Hunting in China" by the Society's president, Mr. Arthur de C. Sowerby.

In his opening remarks Mr. Sowerby discussed China as a game country. He said that China had always been known as such, especially in connection with small game, pheasants, ducks, snipe, and the like.

The country is less well known for its big-game animals, which, however, are plentiful, varied, and extremely interesting.

The chief game areas are, for big-game, the Highlands of Central and West China, running up to 12,000 to 15,000 feet, the big mountains and forests of West and North Shansi, the Tung Ling area in North East Chihli, often known as the Imperial Hunting Grounds, the Manchurian Forests, and the mountains of South East China.

In regard to small game, pheasants were formerly abundant in the Yangtsze Valley, which was a wonderful reserve. It is now shot out. At the present day pheasants are numerous in Shansi, Shensi, Kansu, Hupeh, Szechuan, well away from the reach of cold-storage exploiters of game. The Yangtsze Valley is still good for wild fowl, such as ducks, geese, snipe, while in the forests of Manchuria much good shooting is to be had.

The lecturer's descriptions of the country were illustrated with beautiful slides of scenes taken by himself in the wilds.

MANY VARIETIES

In discussing the various kinds of big-game, Mr. Sowerby said that there were from twenty to thirty different kinds of hoofed animals including wapiti, spotted deer (Sika), roe deer, river deer, muntjacs, muck deer, ssu pu hsiang (extinct), big horn sheep, blue sheep, gorals, serows, takins, goitred gazelle, Mongolian gazelle, Przealskis gazelle and wild pig. He described several personal experiences in hunting these animals.

Besides these hoofed animals, there are a number of large carnivores, which can be included in the category of big game. These are tigers, leopards, bears, wolves. Some of the lecturer's experiences with these animals are hair-raising.

Enumerating the kinds of small game, Mr. Sowerby told of his own and other people's experiences in shooting pheasants, partridges, quails, bustard, geese, ducks, grouse, pigeons, doves, waders and hares.

He spoke of the enemies of game in the country, many of which are to be classed in the category of smaller fur-bearing animals. Such are the wild cats, civets, foxes, wild dogs, raccoon dogs, otter, badgers, mink, marten and ermine.

Other enemies are the predacious birds, such as eagles, owls and hawks, while snakes do a good deal of damage to eggs and young birds.

Mr. Sowerby thought it not unwarrantable to include fishing in his lecture, and passed a few remarks on this interesting subject. He mentioned briefly the kinds of fish in the country and where obtainable. Trout, salmon, pike, bass, carp and catfish are the chief kinds. Serpent heads may also be taken, as well as eels and other less sporting species. Sea fishing has hardly been tried out.

HUNTING FOR SPECIMENS

In conclusion the lecturer discussed hunting for natural history specimens, his own particular line. He gave details of trapping by foreign collectors with foreign traps, and by natives who have numerous methods.

The various kinds of beasts taken are mainly rats, squirrels, shrews, moles, bats and pangolin.

Birds are extremely abundant in this country and keep the naturalist very busy.

Before the lecture was delivered, Dr. Chatley made the following announcement:

The ballot for the officers and committee of the above Society for 1925, which had just taken place, resulted in the same officers as served last year being elected, namely: President, Mr. A. de C. Sowerby; Vice President, Dr. J. C. Ferguson (Arts); Dr. H. Chatley (Science); Committee: Dr. J. G. Anderson, Dr. Wu Lien-teh, Rev. G. D. Wilder, Miss M. A. Millikin, Prof. C. R. Kellogg.

The following lecturers have been booked for the season: Miss Clarice S. Moise on "Landscape Architecture, its History and Application to Home Grounds;" Dr. H. Chatley on "What is Chemical Affinity?"; Mr. Percy L. Bryant on "Camphor and Camphor Oils" Prof. W. M. Porterfield on a subject not yet decided upon.

It is hoped that Dr. Ferguson and other well known speakers will also lecture before the society this season.

It practicable, it is proposed to hold an exhibition illustrating "Commercial Art," as practised in Shanghai.

All those present who were not Society members were invited to join and membership blanks were provided.

Gold Bar Market Greatly Agitated; Yen Position Weak

As has been the case nearly every day for more than a week, the local gold bar market was violently agitated yesterday, the fluctuations ranging as high as five taels. The day previously the price fluctuated six taels.

The disturbance is entirely due to the situation in yen, as the price of silver on the London market remains unchanged. Local sellers finding themselves in a very large oversold position for yen have been trying to manipulate quotations so as to retrieve their position.

The yen market finds itself in a very weak position, closing yesterday with sellers against yen at the price of Taels 49 5-8. The closing price two days previously was 50 5-8.

At Least, Here's One Chinese Who Seeks Another War

Chin Sing, San Francisco, Jailed So Can Be Deported To Fighting China

Another China war will have to get under way soon if the wishes of Chin Sing, a Chinese resident of San Francisco, are to be realised.

Last month when the Shanghai gates were being besieged, Chin Sing, 77 years old, for 57 years a resident of San Francisco, decided he wanted to return to China, join the army and fight for his country—or against it—didn't make much difference.

But he had no money and refused to borrow from friends.

So, according to advice yesterday from California, he took to peddling illicit narcotics.

He was caught at it and fined $1 gold and given six months in jail.

"You'll have to be deported when you are released from prison," he was told.

"I know it," he said. "I want to go back to old home to join army and fight."

And, by the time he serves his six months the present trouble ought to be over. But, there'll probably be another some place.

Bandits Threaten Hsuchow: Train Stopped By Ditch

(China Press Correspondence)

Kaifeng, Oct. 28.—A foreigner who has just reached Kaifeng from Shanghai in passing through Hsuchowfu states that three days ago several thousand Honan disbanded troops tried to hold up Hsuchow for $20,000. A committee of the citizens asked the leaders to let them enter the walls to raise the money, whereupon they got men with guns on the walls and at the gates and then defied the soldiers saying: 'We have no money for you.' The soldiers left.

More light has been thrown on the ditching by bandits of the Lunghai train:

Some soldiers—about fifty armed to the teeth—heard that a train carrying silver was to pass. Thinking it was the regular passenger, they raided it—digging a ditch under the railway so the engine fell through and stopped the train. When they found that the train carrying money was a special that had gone through sooner, they did no one any harm but went away a sore lot.

For days since then the night train from Hsuchowfu has been taken off.

KIDDIES' PARTY ON HALLOWE'EN GREAT SUCCESS

Not A Tummy-Ache Is Reported After Frolic At Columbia Country Club

More than a hundred American children, ranging in age from three to ten, romped and frolicked through the greater part of the afternoon yesterday at the annual Hallowe'en party given by the Columbia Country Club.

Mrs. Bunn and Mrs. Fairman had charge of the important business of dispensing refreshments and with extraordinary wisdom they started the party very early with ice cream. The arrival of this piece de resistance of all childhood parties was the signal for a general outburst of merriment that broke down all traces of self-consciousness incident to the overwhelming importance of being "dressed up," and gave the party a tremendous start.

All the children, from the youngest member who admitted he was just "half-past three" and who appeared in the full regalia of an Admiral, even to sword, plumed hat and medals, were in costume and presented an enchanting picture. Small girls in rabbit skins; Japanese maidens, old-fashioned girls; a lovely little Marie Antoinette who wore her white wig and beauty patches as easily as her French name. Jacqueline; Indians, cowboys, pirates and a myriad of other miniature representations of historic and romantic characters turned the club into a fairyland of pretty children.

A number of prominent Americans, including Messrs. Carl Crow, Joe Eichwald, Gardner Crane, Mark Hanna and others provided a sympathetic adult background and gave things a push when childish imagination for new games lagged. Several flashlight pictures were taken and after candy, toys, and balloons had been distributed and eaten or broken, the exodus began. At 7 o'clock only the hardiest and most tireless spirits were left but they were "snapping the whip," sliding over the polished floor on hands, knees, etc. and generally making the most of their opportunities before the eight o'clock closing time.

The party was a great success. Up to the time of going to press not a single tummy-ache was reported.

Pledges Received For Aid Of Cossacks On Mongougai

The Cossack Relief Committee, which was formed for the purpose of raising funds to help the unfortunate Cossacks on the "Mongougai" anchored near Woosung, has obtained pledges from fourteen firms and individuals to contribute a fixed sum of money monthly for the next five months.

The plan of inducing twenty-five firms to contribute a regular monthly sum to take care of these Cossacks, who are in a desperate plight, until they can be repatriated and sent back to Harbin, originated in the mind of Mrs. Gardner Crane, elected chairman of the committee, at its first meeting. There are 240 Cossacks to be cared for, and they are so malnourished and weak that the regular ten cent allowance daily which has been provided by various relief organisations here for charitable work, is not sufficient for this group. It will cost $60 a day to keep the entire group and the committee is hopeful of obtaining sufficient funds by canvassing a number of firms and pledging them to a small regular contribution.

Mrs. Gardner Crane, Mrs. F. J. Schuhl and Mrs. H. Yorke Irwine have received the following pledges of regularly monthly donations, for 5 months, in less than a week's time:

The Robert Dollar Co.	$60
Lester, Johnson & Morriss	60
Brunner Mond & Co.	60
Mr. D'Auxion de Ruffe	50
Dr. and Mrs. Lovett Cumming	25
American Club Relief Funds	30
Schuhl and Schoenfeld	20
Mrs. Charles Hauss	5
Mrs. George Bronson Rea	5
Mrs. S. C. Kingsbury and Mrs. T. McMartin	5
Sun Maid Raisin Co.	10
Gande Price & Co.	30
Mr. Schoemaker	5

The committee has also received donations of food and clothing as follows:

100 blankets from Jardine, Matheson & Co.

1000 cakes of soap from The China Soap Co.

5 cases milk from Connell Bros.

1 dozen eggs weekly from Amos Bird & Co.

95 packets soap from Palm Olive Soap Co.

The committee requests that all contributions of food and clothing be sent to the relief headquarters, c/o Mr. J. C. Carter, McTavish & Co., chemists, 1 North Soochow Road.

am proud to thus publicly convey to you our whole hearted thanks and gratitude for the great service you have so cheerfully and efficiently performed in the public interest, and to say to you that our pride in our defence forces, while unbounded, is none the less richly deserved."

The men of the various units presented a colorful scene as they passed in review, marching with full equipment.

The Sikh troopers, many of them old-time Indian horsemen, mounted on China ponies, with red and white pennants fluttering from staffs carried by each man, drew, perhaps, the most comment.

But every unit was of snappy bearing and fighting appearance.

The Municipal Band played during the review.

FIGHT GAME IS POPULAR IN THE PHILIPPINES

Correspondent Writes Of Conditions In Manila

(From a Manila Correspondent)

Manila, P. I., Oct. 24.—New arrivals here are frequently impressed by the ability of Filipino lads in the ring. The Olympic Stadium, in Manila, the main organisation, has a well-equipped place and a fair training gymnasium, and the development of prize-fighting under its control is very marked. The native boys, of course, didn't know what a glove was until the game was introduced into Manila by foreign soldiers and sailors, but they have developed excellently.

A couple of recent examples of what the boys in Manila can do are given by the work of George Eagel, Joe Dillon, and other American scrappers. Eagel had cleaned up with some of the best in Australia before he came to Manila, and was the highest paid man to fight here, being guaranteed $1,000 gold for his first fight. Eagel was badly licked by Elino Flores, and was matched later with Elino's brother Irineo, who also put it over the American.

Joe Dillon, a flyweight of long standing who boasts that he was never kayoed, and who has met some very high-class lads, came out from America and was matched with Clever Sencio, the local flyweight champ, but failed to get better than a draw. He staged a good fight, however, and was popular on account of it. Later, however, he was beaten on points by Battling Candelosa, though again putting up a game struggle. He is now returning to the United States, and should be in Shanghai shortly.

FIGHT REGULATIONS

It might be of interest to note the fight regulations in Manila. There is no boxing commission in the Islands, the Olympic Stadium in Manila, the main club, having the setting of titles at its disposal, and employing its own referee, who is the only judge of the contest. His word, whether draw, win, or stop, is final. An American police sergeant and several Filipino policemen are assigned to the Stadium, but outside of heaving out a bird with an excess of hard cider in him the cops have little to do, and enjoy the fights to the utmost.

Any club in the Philippines, organised as an athletic club with members, is allowed to stage a fight a week. There are two clubs now active in the Islands, one being at Manila and the other at Cebu. The Cebu club stages fights among the lesser tribe, an occasional comer showing in the southern ring before he hits Manila.

No betting is allowed in the clubs openly, but of course a few side bets are placed. Fights are conducted on an orderly basis, and very little trouble is ever experienced. The fight game is popular, and furnishes the common topic of barroom, club, and hotel talk.

WALTER HAGEN IS '24 PROFESSIONAL GOLF CHAMPION

BY JOE DAVIS

French Lick Springs, Ind., Sept. 20.—Once more Walter Hagen of New York gave convincing proof he is the premier golfer of the country, and the equal of any golfer in the world. Today he supplemented his win of this year's British open championship by defeating Jim Barnes of New York in the deciding contest for the championship of the Professional Golfers' Association.

His margin of two up over the thirty-six-hole route at the French Lick Golf Club was the outcome of a morning round in which the superb play of Hagen appeared to have his lengthy opponent on the toboggan to a heavy defeat. The lengthy Englishman faced a deficit of four holes when they started the afternoon round, but as on many previous occasions, he showed his fighting spirit and carried the battle to the thirty-sixth hole, where a badly played second shot for the green wrecked his chances of the win he needed to carry the struggle to extra holes.

Through the first nine in the afternoon he reduced Hagen's lead to two up, and then at the eleventh cut it to one by shooting a birdie three. He never should have lost the twelfth hole, but he dogged an eighteen-inch putt for a half, not giving the ball a chance. This was a crucial putt for him, as had he made it he would have squared the match at the next green, where he won with a three. Instead he was one down, and he never had a chance to square. Hagen took the fifteenth hole, and by halving the sixteenth practically clinched the match, being dormie two. Walter took three putts on the seventeenth green and gave Jim another lease on life, but Jim's wide shot for the last hole extinguished his hopes.

Another capacity house viewed the picture, "Scaramouche," at the Carlton Theater last night and although no announcement of the management has been made further than an extension of three more days or until next Tuesday, this picture bids fair to break all records for Shanghai for continued interest on the part of the public. It has been necessary to turn away a number of people at each of the exhibitions. The setting with three orchestras including thirty musicians naturally provides a fitting atmosphere for the picture.

STORY OF WORLD'S SERIES TO APPEAR IN "CHINA PRESS"

Sunday Sports Edition To Contain Full Account Of Contests

The story of probably the most remarkable world's series ever played, which went to the full number of games—seven—for only the third time in the history of the contests, and in which the Washington Senators, the customary "goats" of the American League, achieved a splendid victory over the New York Giants, many times champions of the world, will appear in full in tomorrow's Sports Section of The China Press. In addition to the account of the games there will also appear many photographs, showing players, scenes at the ball parks, etc. Every baseball fan in the Far East will be interested in obtaining a copy of this paper.

In addition to the articles on the world's series, there will be a special baseball article on the late Frank Chance, the "Peerless Leader" of baseball, written by a former team-mate, which will also be read with much interest.

The Sports Section will also contain, as usual, reports on all local sporting events, boxing and other sporting comment, items on important events in America and elsewhere, etc., etc.

Three singles matches and two doubles will be played, the singles coming first. As the winner of this tournament will get possession of the Slazenger Cup, secured for the Association by Mr. N. B. In the first round of this tournament Shanghai College won from Fuhtan in five straight matches, and in the semi-final took four matches out of five from St. John's. In the first round of the other triangle, between Nanking, Soochow and Southeastern, Soochow defeated Southeastern four matches out of five, and in the semi-final lost three out of five to Nanking. There are two first-division matches scheduled for this afternoon's League play, one between the Football Club and the Marine Engineers and the other between the Recs and the Police.

The game between the Club and the Engineers will be played on the S. F. C. grounds, and it will be interesting to see how the Engineers show up this year. They will be represented by the following players:—E. J. Sluis, T. W. R. Wilson, F. G. Whyte, J. Falconer, G. T. Crawford, H. Turner, A. J. Clark, M. Moosa, A. E. Barnes, W. E. Austen, W. A. Bailey. Reserves—G. E. Sistonan, J. Turner, W. W. Mackenizie, G. L. Koppany. Linesman—S. Howard

RECS vs. POLICE

The Shanghai Recreation Club, winners of the League and Skottowe Cup for the past two seasons, will meet the Police team at the new Pioneer Field this afternoon. The Police showed a good defense last week, and for a while put up a brilliant offensive, though they lost to the Club 3-0. Judging from last week's play of both teams, this afternoon's match should be closely contested.

The kick-off will be at 3.00 p.m., and the charge for general admittance will be 20 cents. Stands will be 40 cents.

The Race will line up as follows:—Remedios, Turner, Xavier, C. J. Smith, Tordy, F. Ollerdessen, G. Johansson, V. Evans, A. Sofoulis, P. Madar, T. Madar.

The Police team will be: Isaacs, Clissold (capt.) Biggs, Robins, Boddy, Hurry, Hotchkiss, Gash, Main, Palmer, Wilkinson. Reserve:—Turner.

SECOND LEAGUE GAMES

In the Second Division one of the most interesting games promises to be that between the S. F. C. 2d and the Deutscher Fussball Club. The German team put up an excellent game in their initial match last Saturday, beating the Recs second by 2 goals to 1.

The S. F. C. team will be:—goal, G. C. Large; full backs: right, H. Spence, left, M. Tonkin (Capt.); half backs: right, L. F. Payne; centre, C. J. A. Bingham; left, L. F. Stokes; forwards: outside right, A. F. Deer; inside right, A. L. Whittaker; centre, D. Drake; inside left, C. N. Brown; outside left, H. H. Nash; Reserves—L. G. Day, G. J. Day, W. F. K. Telfer.

Another game which should be well contested is that between the Police 2d and the Portuguese Sporting Association's 2d., at the S. R. C. grounds. The Portuguese lineup will be:—T. Collaco, A. Botelho, V. Xavier, L. Encarnacao, C. Ozorio, H. Ribeiro, C. Danenberg, F. Gutierrez (Capt), M. Ferreira, P. Costa, M. Sequeira. Reserve:—R. Xavier.

RECS 2d vs. SOCOL

The Recs second team are due to meet the Socol Football Club, which put up an excellent game against the strong St. Xaviers' team last week, on the Police ground. The Recs 2d will be as follows:

Mealem, Petersen, Griffiths, S. Emamcoden, Marshall, Brockett, Pots-Hunt, Carlson, Brandt, Hayward, T. Emamooden. Reserves—Moalem, Reid, Doreido.

The Jewish R. C. will meet the Royal Navy team this afternoon at the Polo grounds. The Navy played very well last week, and the Jewish team will have its hands full to win from them. The Jewish players will be:

J. Greben; D. Blumenthal, C. Fuxman (captain): I. Greenberg, B. Shwartz, S. Moalem: K. Gestkewitch, W. Kossolapoff, W. Ismond, M. Foox, L. Feingold. Reserves: A. Kossolapoff, L. Brunnal.

What promises to be a very interesting match is that between the St. Francis Xavier's Football Club and the Thos. Hanbury School team at Hongkew today. Xavier showed all their last year's strength in their opening game last week, while the Hanbury School boys played a very fine game against the Portuguese 2d.

CHINESE TEAMS

The Union football team of the Chinese Recreation Club will meet the Sam Yoh Football eleven on the latter's grounds in Kiaochow Road this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The teams are fairly well balanced, and an interesting match is expected.

A business meeting for the Union Team will be held after the game, which members are requested to attend.

Chinese Hong Football League

The formation of a football league among Chinese here is announced, it consisting of teams from a number of foreign and Chinese hongs. All the players on these teams are Chinese, and keep competition is looked forward to.

The first games of the Hong League will be played on Pioneer Field tomorrow, November 2, when the Standard Oil team will meet the American Asiatic Underwriters (at 2 p.m.) and the Post Office will play the Chinese Maritime Customs (at 3.15 p.m.). The admission charge of 20 cents covers both games. Stands will be 40 cents.

The teams making up the League are as follows:

OPEN TOURNAMENT STARTS AT FRENCH CLUB HERE TODAY

Tennis Play Begins At 1.30; Wade And Mansel Smith Among Players

The Lawn Tennis Tournament at the French Club is due to start this afternoon. There are very many entries for this big tournament, which will continue until after the races, and on account of the large number of entries it has been found necessary to commence play each day at 1:30, instead of 2 o'clock as previously advertised.

An effort will be made to let competitors know as far as possible the approximate time they are required to play. The Referee, Mr. E. T. Maitland, wishes it distinctly understood, however, that although one's name may not appear in the schedule as advertised, any player may be called upon to play at a moment's notice at any time after 2 o'clock, and competitors should therefore be ready to play whenever required after this time.

The following are to play today:

At 1:30. C. C. Tang, P. D. Yannoulatos, A. J. Meise, Y. Kuwabara, A. R. Hagen, B. Khrenoff, W. Stewart, C. Stigler, F. S. Clark, C. P. Oliver, C. King, M. Renerd, I. B. Woolleny, C. J. Coulcher, W. E. Kent, G. Mary, Reaburn, V. Chair, Bond, Dumbarton, Goolden, J. A. Tippin, R. M. J. Martin, K. M. Bourne Plews, and Romar.

At 2 o'clock: A. H. George, W. Mausel Smith, J. L. Wade, Tweedie Stodart.

At 2:15. B. Khrenoff, Witkowsky, L. C. Tang, Goolden, Coulcher, Mackenzie, Axerfield, Renwick, Thorpe, H. E. Denny, S. M. Edwards, J. R. Maughan, Kuwabara, W. Turner, Miss Davey, Miss F. H. White.

THE AMERICAN TOURNAMENT

Competitors in the American tournament are advised to complete as many matches as possible during the first two or three days. Those who have entered in several other events will especially find it to their advantage to do so, as naturally the subsequent round of the open events, as well as of the handicaps, will be more strenuous than the early ones, and leaving a great number of matches to be played in the American Tournament for the last few days will mean a great strain on those who come through the other events.

U. S. Court For China Here Gives Judgment Against Steamer Owego

Judge Purdy Holds Shipowners Responsible Sustenance And Wages Of Men Brought Out On Contracts

In the action brought by eight men of the American steamship Owego, who were paid off in Foochow May 22 with the assurance that they could obtain return passage to Seattle via the Manila Maru June 3, in the United States Court for China, Judge Milton D. Purdy yesterday handed down judgment in favor of five of the libellants, dismissing the cases of the other three palintiffs on account of lack of evidence to support their claim.

Judge Purdy, in his judgment, pointed out that the libellants were entitled under their contract to wages and fare back to Seattle. His Honor was of the opinion, also, that the libellants were entitled to their subsistence in Shanghai while awaiting a homeward-bound ship, and believed fifteen days was a reasonable time to permit of their obtaining passage. He awarded each of them, accordingly, subsistence at G. $2.50 per day for fifteen days, and additional wages for ten days following June 23, the date they should have reached Seattle had they been able to obtain passage on the Manila Maru as promised them.

The decision and judgment, in full, are as follows:

Libellants were discharged under their several contracts with the defendants before the American Consul at Foochow, China, on May 22, 1924, at which time they were paid all arrears of wages, and extra wages for one month, up to, and including, June 23, 1924. At the time of their discharge, they also received one hundred thirty and no/100 ($130.00) Mexican dollars, to cover their cost of transportation from Shanghai to Seattle on the Manila Maru of the Osaka Shosen Kaisha Line, together with a ticket on the Ninghsin from Foochow to Shanghai. When libellants arrived in the city of Shanghai, in the latter part of May, they ascertained that they were unable to obtain passage on the Manila Maru, and that the Africa Maru, of the same line, sailing from Shanghai on June 5, was unable to furnish them with transportation.

At the time of these settlements, made before the American Consul, libellants were informed by the owner of the ship Owego that the Manila Maru was sailing from Shanghai to Seattle on June 3, and that the probable date of her arrival in Seattle was June 23, and that he either had reserved, or could obtain, transportation for them on that ship. By reason of such representations, libellants were induced to, and did, accept additional wages from May 23 to June 23, to cover wages in transit, which they were entitled to receive under the terms of their shipping contracts. As a matter of fact, Brewster, the ship owner, at the time of these settlements, had not secured reservations for these libellants, nor was he able so to do, for the simple reason that all third-class tickets on the Manila Maru had been sold. Libellants were unable to get back to Seattle by June 23, and it does not appear from the evidence as to what day in June was the earliest day on which they could have left Shanghai for Seattle. There is no claim made that there was any mistake or misunderstanding, at the time of settlement, in regard to the amount of transportation money which was furnished them, but it is claimed that there was a misunderstanding and mistake as to the time when they could have left Shanghai, and the date of their arrival in Seattle. Libellants bring this action to recover wages, subsistence and transportation, which they claim they were entitled to receive under their shipping contracts with the owner, if these facts had been known at the time the settlements were made.

Libellants Frank Kenney, A. J. Sorensen, and James Warren, failed to offer, or produce, any claims at the time of their trial, and their actions were accordingly dismissed.

SAME PRINCIPLE AS DIAZ CASE

The decision is this case is controlled by the principles of law recognised and applied by this court in the case of F. Diaz et al. vs. S-S Owego et al, (No. 2448) decided on October 25, 1924. The facts in these two cases are substantially the same, and reference is hereby made to the Diaz case for a more complete statement of facts than above set forth. The libellants here were discharged on the 22nd day of May, while in the Diaz case, they were not discharged until a week later, May 29, and in this case there was no mistake or misunderstanding with respect to the amount of money which was paid and received in settlement, on account of transportation. These libellants accepted $130.00, Mexican money, each, as the cost of their transportation from Shanghai to Seattle, which was the price of a third-class ticket by the Osaka Shosen Kaisha Line. Libellants only complaint is that they were informed by the owner that they could leave Shanghai by the Manila Maru, sailing on the 23rd day of June, and that by reason of such representation they were induced to settle for their wages back to Seattle upon the theory that they would reach Seattle on the 23rd day of June. It is true that libellants were not guaranteed transportation by the owner, on the Manila Maru, but his representation that transportation on that ship was then obtainable by him, induced them to make settlement for additional wages, covering a shorter period than they would otherwise had such representation not been made. I think the evidence fairly shows that such transportation was not then obtainable by Brewster or anyone else. I, therefore, find as a fact that libellants were induced to make these settlement contracts before the American Consul, by reason of a mutual mistake of fact as to the date on which they would be able to leave Shanghai for Seattle, and that they are entitled to rescind such settlement contracts and recover such additional sums of money as will amount to the total of what they would have been entitled to receive under their shipping contracts, had these settlement contracts never been made.

ENTITLED TO WAGES AND FARE

Under those shipping contracts, libellants were entitled, "if discharged in the Orient, to be paid wages and fare back to Seattle." I am inclined to the opinion, and so hold, that under these original shipping contracts, libellants were entitled to receive reasonable subsistence while waiting in Shanghai for a ship to carry them home. There is no testimony in the record from which I can determine the earliest date upon which they could have sailed from Shanghai, and I am, therefore, compelled, under the circumstances, to allow them a reasonable time after they had failed to obtain passage upon the Manila Maru, and I find that such reasonable time is fifteen days from June 1. I shall, therefore, allow each of these libellants subsistence at the rate of two and 50/100 (G$2.50) gold dollars per day, for a period of fifteen days, from and after the first day of June, and additional wages for a period of ten days, from and after the 23rd day of June.

(1) I find that Libellant Arthur Johannesen is entitled to $37.50 (gold), for fifteen days subsistence, at the rate of $2.50 per day, from the 1st to the 15th of June, 1924, and $23.33 (gold) additional wages in transit, from the 23rd day of June, until the 3rd day of July, 1924, being one third of his monthly salary, all amounting in the aggregate to $60.83 (gold).

(2) I find that Libellant S. Hughes is entitled to $37.50 (gold) for fifteen days subsistence, at the rate of $2.50 per day, from the 1st to the 15th of June, 1924, and $24.15 (gold) additional wages in transit, from the 23rd day of June, until the 3rd day of July, 1924, being one third of his monthly salary, all amounting in the aggregate to $61.65 (gold).

(3) I find that Libellant J. Anderson is entitled to $37.50 (gold) for fifteen days subsistence, at the rate of $2.50 per day, from the 1st to the 15th of June, 1924, and $24.15 (gold) additional wages in transit, from the 23rd day of June, until the 3rd day of July, 1924, being one third of his monthly salary, all amounting in the aggregate to $61.65 (gold).

(4) I find that Libellant J. E. West is entitled to $37.50 (gold) for fifteen days subsistence, at the rate of $2.50 per day, from the 1st to the 15th of June, 1924, and $18.33 (gold) additional wages in transit, from the 23rd day of June, until the 3rd day of July, 1924, being one third of his monthly salary, all amounting in the aggregate to $55.83 (gold).

(5) I find that Libellant H. Banham, is entitled to $37.50 (gold) for fifteen days subsistence, at the rate of $2.50 per day, from the 1st to the 15th of June, 1924, and $23.33 (gold) additional wages in transit, from the 23rd day of June, until the 3rd day of July, 1924, being one third of his monthly salary, all amounting in the aggregate to $60.83 (gold).

It is accordingly adjudged and decreed that libellants, severally and individually, have and recover judgment against the above named defendants, as follows: Arthur Johannesen—G. $60.83. S. Hughes—G. $61.65. J. Anderson—G. $61.65. J. E. West—G. $55.83. H. Banham—G. $60.83, together with the costs of this action.

where he had concentrated some seven brigades of his troops.

DOUBLE ATTACK PLANNED
(Eastern News Agency)

Tientsin, Oct. 31.—The main force of General Chang Tsung-chang has proceeded towards Tientsin, while two brigades of General Hu Ching-yi's troops had been concentrated in Langfang by the 29th instant. The troops under the command of Marshal Wu Pei-fu, approximately 10,000 strong, are now about to be attacked from both sides.

It is reported that the troops under the command of General Yen Hsi-shan, Tuchun and concurrently Civil Governor of Shansi, which have already captured Shihchiachuang on the Kinhan line, attacked and disarmed the Hupeh forces, which were being transported by rail.

ORDER SUBJUGATION
(Eastern News Agency)

Mukden, Oct. 31.—Infuriated at the circulation by the Chihli faction of various false reports against Fengtien, Marshal Chang Tso-lin has given strict instructions to his troops to carry out the thorough-going subjugation of Marshal Wu Pei-fu.

TO PASS WALL
(Eastern News Agency)

Tientsin, Oct. 31.—Two cavalry brigades under the command of General Wu Kuang-shin, which had followed General Chang Tsung-chang's troops, are reported to have occupied the stronghold of Yungping some 10 miles to the northeast of Luanchow yesterday at 2 p.m.

It is said that the main force of General Li Ching-lin's troops will pass the Great Wall at Linkow today, advancing southward.

URGES TUAN AS CHIEF
(Eastern News Agency)

Mukden, Oct. 30.—Marshal Chang Tso-lin, the Manchurian war-lord, has issued a circular telegram, announcing that he has resolved to recommend Marshal Tuan Chi-jui to the post as Commander-in-Chief of all the national troops throughout the country.

SECOND ARMY ADVANCES
(Eastern News Agency)

Mukden, Oct. 30.—The Second Fengtien Army under the command of General Li Ching-lin, following upon the troops commanded by General Chang Tsung-chang who has already succeeded in capturing Luanchow and Changli, passed the Great Wall at Lingkou today, pressing on towards Chinwangtao.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tientsin, Oct. 31.—The latest news from Chinwangtao indicates that firing occurred on the wharves. At present it is uncertain whether this was due to the Fengtienites advance, or to mutinous soldiers.

Foreign women and children had been taken off on board the Kailan Mining Administration's steamer the Kwangping, before the firing commenced.

FENG HEADS ARMY
(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, October 26.—As the result of the Conference at Peiyuan yesterday afternoon, it is reported that General Feng's colleagues agreed to recognise him as Commander-in-Chief of the Chunghua National Army.

The Chinese papers report that it was decided to select another Cabinet to consist of the following:—Premier and Minister of the Interior, Dr. W. W. Yen; Minister of Foreign Affairs and concurrently Minister of Communications, Dr. C. T. Wang; Minister of War, General Huang Fu; Minister of Finance, Mr. Shau Tso-min; Minister of Commerce, Mr. Wang Nei-ping; Minister of Education, Mr. Li Shih-tseng; Minister of Justice, Mr. Chang Tao-tseng; Minister of the Navy, Admiral Tu Hsi-kuei.

The Chinese papers also state that Generals Hu Ching-yi and Sun Yueh were elected Vice-Commandants of the National Army.

In response to inquiries this afternoon, Dr. W. W. Yen stated that a considerable amount of pressure was being brought upon him to induce him to accept the Premiership in a new Cabinet. Dr. Yen, however, thought that there ought to be an interval between acceptance of the Cabinet's resignation and the appointment of a new Cabinet, in accordance with the practice in foreign countries. His idea was to maintain the international position of China.

This was not a question of domestic politics. It did not mean that he was opposed to peace or in favor of war. It was a personal matter involving a duty, in view of his experience abroad, to see that he did nothing to prejudice his country abroad. He did not know that a new Cabinet had been selected, but if that were so it would appear in a mandate in due course.

CANTON'S VIEWS
(Eastern News Agency)

Canton, Oct. 30.—Messrs. Liao Chung-kai and Wang Chao-ming, who has just returned here from Shaokwan where they held a conference with Dr. Sun Yat-sen as regards steps to be taken by the Canton Government in connection with the recent political change in Peking, are quoted as having stated that in a few days, a "state foundation" conference will be convened in Canton with all leading officials of the present Government present, when some concrete measures are expected to be discussed.

Meanwhile, it has been decided that all the troops under the control of Dr. Sun will be designated as "state foundation army."

It is understood that Dr. Sun will shortly return here from Shaokwan to attend the forthcoming conference referred to above.

information to the effect that the Shantung military authorities have declared independence from Tsao Kun rule and Governor Hsiung Ping-chi has been placed under surveillance.

"Governor Yen of Shansi has despatched two brigades to guard Shihchiachwang. The remnants of Wu Pei-fu's army had a clash with the soldiers of Hu Ching-yi and Feng Yu-hsiang and were routed. Wu has secured a house in the French concession of Tientsin in order to take refuge there.

"Chang Tso-lin.

"Dated October 30."

Despite promises, no more Hupeh troops left the Lunghua Arsenal yesterday. Instead, large numbers of them were seen waudering in the streets in the Chinese city and riding about in trams. Inquiries showed that no orders have been given for their departure.

For the first time since the war, three trains were despatched to Nanking yesterday with slight irregularities in the time schedule. The express left here at 9:30 as usual. A mail train was sent from Shanghai North at 9:50 and a fast train left there at 12:30 o'clock.

General Yang Hua-chao, the running mate of Chwang Tse-ping, arrived in Hongkong on Thursday, according to a telegram sent by him to a local friend yesterday. With the consent of the Hongkong Governor, he saw Little Hsu upon his arrival, the message said. He reports that Hsu is quite free in his activities and they are both going shortly to Canton upon the invitation of General Hu Han-min.

The Chinese theaters in Chapei have complained about the intrusion of troops, who demand to see shows without paying for their tickets. Over a dozen are found in each theater every night, causing a great deal of annoyance among the civilian spectators.

Reports are pouring into the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce here from Woosung, Paoshan, Nanziang, Taichang and other war-stricken districts complaining about further looting and burning by Kiangsu soldiery.

THE BIGGEST SENSATION OF ALL SCREEN SPECTACLES

When a Girl Loves
Whether in the Garden of Eden a million years ago—or on Crowded Broadway this afternoon—the story is the same. Here is a girl, beautiful, cultured, innocent, enamoured of a youth, handsome, adventurous and poor.
Against him is a powerful rival, with wealth and a noble title, aflame with the desire for a girl.
Amid scenes of prodigal splendor in the royal court of France and through the gaiety and adventure of Paris, this great picture sweeps, unfolding the greatest story of love and lust, pathos and passion ever screened.

THREE CHINESE IN CUSTODY FOR HAVING PISTOLS

Man In Ricsha, Picked Up Whit Two Mausers, Attempts To Bribe Constable

Three Chinese were taken into custody by the police Thursday on charges of illegal possession of arms.

Two of the defendants are private watchmen employed by a contractor in the Hongkew district. When arrested, one of the men had a .32 caliber automatic pistol. The men said that it had been given them by a friend who asked them to dispose of it for him. The homes of the men were searched by the police but no contraband was found.

A Chinese who lives in Hwakee Road was arrested by a special police constable while riding in a ricsha in Yangtszepoo Road. He had in his possession at the time two .32 caliber Mauser pistols and 461 rounds of ammunition. When arrested, he attempted to bribe the constable by offering him $10.

LOCAL Y.M.C.A. ENTERTAINS OWN NOTED LEADERS

Prominent Y.M.C.A. leaders were entertained at a Chinese feast last night at the Chinese Y.M.C.A. by its directors and secretaries. The guests of honor were Mr. W. F. Hypes, president of the Chicago Y.M.C.A.; Mr. S. T. Wen, Commissioner of Foreign Affairs at Shanghai; Mr. G. P. Wang, Chief of the Chinese Constabulary; and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Fitch of the association.

Mr. S. U. Zau, chairman of the board of directors of the organisation, presided and delivered the principal speech of welcome.

Mr. Wen pledged to support the local association financially, which pledge, he said, should be more eloquent than any words he could deliver. He further asked his Christian fellow-workers not to be disappointed with the chaos in China, but to struggle hard and patiently serve God so that the day of peace might be hastened.

Mr. Hypes described the growth of the Y.M.C.A. in Chicago since its establishment 65 years, its crisis, 15 years ago when it was in financial difficulties and the present organisation, which has a budget of over $4,000,000, of which 96 percent is self-sustaining.

Mr. Hypes expressed great admiration for the work that was being done by the Y.M.C.A. here. He predicted a bigger Shanghai and greater China and was confident that when the railways were built, education pushed ahead and industries developed, China would yet make the nations of the world 'sit up and take notice.'

Mr. Wang pointed out the service being rendered by the Y.M.C.A. in the improvement of health and means communication as well as the maintenance of peace. The police of the city, which he represented, had similar duties to perform. By closer co-operation with the Y.M.C.A., he hoped to improve conditions within the districts under his jurisdiction.

Mr. Fitch announced his temporary severance from the local Chinese Y.M.C.A., which he trusted would meet with the approval of his directors and co-workers, especially in view of the fact that he was going to organise a Y.M.C.A. for the foreigners in Shanghai. The need for such an organisation had been felt for some considerable time and now opportunities had come at last to realise the hopes. He thought by joining this new phase of Y.M.C.A. work, he could contribute much to make the movement broader and bigger.

Economic And Financial Conditions In September

The following is the concluding instalment of statistics prepared by Dr. E. Kann, Acting General Manager of the Chinese Americas Bank of Commerce, relative to economic and financial conditions during September:

The modus connected with opening and handling import credits has proved to be strange, at least in some aspects, to many merchants. The writer has therefore thought it appropriate to close this month's report with a short treatise on:

FINANCING OF IMPORTS INTO CHINA

A small portion of China's imports is financed by collection drafts, which means that the exporter will obtain his money (eventually plus interest) after advice from China has been received, saying that the drafts has duly been paid.

A larger portion of imports into China is financed by T. T. This means that the goods are shipped free to that country and that the proceeds of sale are transferred by cable to the shipper (or his order) after having been realised.

The bulk of China's imports is financed by means of credits opened by the importer in favor of the exporter. This signifies shifting the burden of financing an overseas transaction from exporter to importer.

It is remarkable how little exporters really know of the legal aspects of the various forms of credits. The following is merely an attempt to define briefly the various forms of credits employed by importers in China:

(I). AUTHORITY PURCHASE (A. P.)

(a) Revocable and with recourse to drawer.

(b) Irrevocable and with recourse to drawer.

(c) Revocable, but without recourse to drawer.

(z) Confirmed and irrevocable.

(d) Confirmed by issuing Bank, but not by notifying Bank.

(e) Confirmed by issuing Bank and also by notifier.

(f) Confirmed and without recourse to drawer.

(g) Confirmed and irrevocable.

(II) ACCEPTANCE CREDITS

(1) The Authority to Purchase is employed largely for financing imports into China from foreign countries. The authority is issued by a Bank in China upon the written request of an importer of approved standing. It is for a specified amount, for clearly specified goods, to be shipped within a clearly stipulated period. A full set of shipping documents is accompanying the draft, drawn either at sight or at usuance up to six months after sight; usually 90 or 120 days after sight.

The typical characteristics of the A/P referred to under (a) are:

(1) The notifying Bank abroad acts merely as agent of the Bank in China and is at liberty to cancel the Authority to draw, if the Bank in China does not provide in due time the funds which are needed for negotiating the drafts. This right is clearly visible from the manner in which the Authority to draw is advised: "Dear Sirs:

We beg to inform you that we are in receipt of instructions from the.....Bank in Shanghai, authorising us on behalf of .... to negotiate your documentary drafts, if tendered before the .... for itself the right to cancel the after sight, etc., etc."

(2) The issuing Bank reserves for itself the right to cancel the credit, or its unused balance, at any time without previous notice to the exporter or without the consent of the importer.

(3) The drawer (exporter) is responsible to the issuing Bank in China for payment of the draf on due date, should the drawee (importer) fail to meet his obligation. This obligation is clearly impressed on the exporter in the original advice to him, which ends up in the words:

"Please note that this is not to be considered as being a Bank Credit and does not relieve the drawer from the liability attaching to the Drawer of a bill of exchange."

Although these conditions seem to be severe, they are accepted for financing the bulk of British and Continental Trade with China. America exacts more severe terms, usually confirmed credits.

The next variety of the A/P is the one mentioned under (b) irrevocable and with recourse. Such Authorities are required for financing goods which have to be manufactured specially (machinery, cotton or woollen cloth with particular patterns), or goods which have to be collected in lots. The drawer remains responsible until the draft has been paid, but the issuing Bank has not the right to cancel the A/P before the date of its original expiry.

The third kind of A/P, revocable, but without recourse to drawer, mentioned under (c), means that the Authority to draw may be cancelled during its life, but once the drafts have been negotiated, the drawer (shipper) is no more responsible, should acceptance or payment of the draft be refused. The issuing Bank has recourse omy against the drawee (importer) and is secured by the goods.

Some writers speak of a fourth kind of A/P, namely irrevocable and without recourse to drawer. In reality this would be a confirmed credit par excellence, and not an Authority to Purchase.

(2) The confirmed credit, as classified under (d) means a definite engagement on the part of the issuing Bank to either negotiate drafts under clearly stipulated conditions, or to honor drafts drawn by the beneficiary. This shows that the issuing Bank is liable to the shipper for the fulfillment of its engagements, but not the notifying Bank.

The class of confirmed credit specified under (e) differs from the foregoing, because both the issuer and the notifier remain liable to the exporter. This is the real "confirmed" Letter of Credit, while (d) is often styled (though not correctly) "unconfirmed."

Under (f) we have the "confirmed and without recourse to drawer" credit. A remarkably large percentage of exporters do not know much about the variations in the sundry classes of credits just described. It is generally taken for granted that every "confirmed" credit is "without recourse to drawer." This is not the case. According to law the drawer under a confirmed letter of credit is liable until the draft has been accepted by the drawee. Then his responsibility ceases, and the holder of his draft has no more recourse on the drawer, should the acceptor fail to pay on due date. Only if the credit is "confirmed and without recourse" is there no more obligation on the part of the drawer, once he has handed in his draft and the documents.

The next class (g) treats "confirmed and irrevocable" credits. Irrevocable means, as already previously stated, that the credit cannot be cancelled prior to the expiration date without the consent of the beneficiary. In theory a "confirmed" credit is liable to be cancelled; in practice this is rarely or never done. The term "irrevocable" does not absolve the drawer from liability until the draft has been accepted.

It happens frequently that exporters to China demand that an "irrevocable" credit should be established in their favor. They take it for granted that the term of "irrevocable" includes the attributes "confirmed and "without recourse." This is by no means the case. Unless distinctly advised the exporter must take the term of "irrevocable" to be binding only on the issuing, but not on the advising Bank.

The ideal credit for the exporter is the "confirmed irrevocable —without recourse" credit.

(3) Acceptance Credits: This method of financing imports into China has, up to the present, been employed in London only. It differs in many respects from the methods of opening either A/P or confirmed credits; principally because no drafts are sent to China and because there are no interest to be paid there.

This class of credit will only be used if discount rates are low, say not above three and a half percent; otherwise it would be unremunerative to use acceptance credits.

The procedure is as follows: At the request of the importer in China, a Bank there opens an Acceptance Credit with a London Bank for a certain amount, to be availed of by the exporter within a certain time, and against shipment to China of a certain class of goods.

Instead of drawing on the importer in China, the shipper in London will draw on a London Bank (as authorised) at from 60 to 120 days after sight. The London Bank accecpts the drafts and hands it back to the exporter from whom it had simultaneously obtained the complete set of shipping documents; these are forwarded to the issuing Bank in China.

The exporter will discount in the open market the draft accepted by the London Bank, if he is in need of funds. Otherwise he will hold the draft until the moment, when it will suit him to turn the acceptance into money.

The cost of such a transaction is the commission charge, which varies, but which averages ¼ percent per month.

If the market rate for 120 days prime Bankers acceptances is 3 percent, for instance, and the acceptance commission ⅛ percent per mensem, the total interest cost will be 4½ percent per annum, compared with 6 percent payable under A/P or confirmed credits. Financing imports into China under acceptance credits does not involve disbursement of moneys on the part of any one of the parties directly involved in the transaction. The accepting Bank merely lends its credit. All it demands is its commission and the remittance of cover from China on due date of the draft.

The issuing Bank has no outlay of funds, but its risk is somewhat larger, seeing that there is no drawer, and consequently no recourse on drawer.

Its profit consists of a share in the acceptance commission, and in profits when fixing the rate of exchange.

These are the principal features of credits as used by importers in China. There are many particulars connected with the problem, which cannot be discussed here for lack of space.

Yet it is deemed expedient to include some remarks on local custom regarding the handling of shipping documents attached to the drafts negotiated under credits opened by China Banks. If goods are shipped to China under "confirmed" credit or under "A/P without recourse to drawer," the shipper is in no way concerned as to how the shipping documents are handled in China; this is an arrangement entirely between the drawee and the Bank in China.

If, however, goods are shipped to China in terms of an "Authority to Purchase," the exporter, remaining liable as drawer until payment of the draft, is closely concerned with the handling of the documents.

Depending on the consent of the issuing Bank in China and on the agreement of both exporter and importer, it is to be stipulated whether drafts are to be drawn with documents deliverable on acceptance (D/A) or on payment (D/P). If nothing is said on the face of the draft it is understood that documents are "D/P." Sometimes the Bank in China will give up the goods to the importer against the latter's Trust Receipt. Unless the Bank has the distinct consent in writing from the drawer, it loses all recourse against the latter, in case the acceptor (importer) fails to meet his obligations on due date.

It is customary in China to deliver shipments in case (bales, barrels, bags, etc.) lots. Say an exporter has made a shipment of 25 cases of woollen cloth to China and drawn at 90 days after sight, under an A/P, U.S. $6,000 on the importer in Shanghai.

The importer may take delivery of case lots before due date, by paying to the Bank the corresponding sums as part payments of the face amount of the draft. This way of procedure may not suit the exporter, especially because the importer has the choice of picking out the current articles, and leaving the goods with a narrow market unsold and the corresponding amount of the draft unpaid.

In case of a law suit, the case would probably be decided against plaintiff on the ground of odd-established commercial custom in China. Very few exporters abroad are fully aware of these conditions, the existence of which has proved to be a necessity involving infinitesimal risks for the exporter. Should the latter, however, not agree to the procedure described, he would have to give instructions to that effect, or have the draft market "Part deliveries not permitted."

AMERICAN EXPORT SYSTEM IS UPHELD

Credit Methods, Deliveries, Packing And Shipping Give Satisfaction

New York, Sept. 14.—Charges made at a previous meeting by Alfonse Grez, a Chilean business man, that American exporters were loose in their methods of conducting their business with other countries, particularly with Latin America, were yesterday afternoon repudiated at a luncheon meeting of the Export Managers' Club at the Hotel Pennsylvania. The speakers were Joseph McElroy III of Pass & Seymour; Paul R. Mahony, of the Wahl Company, and E. R. Flisinger, of Lawrence & Co.

Each speaker rejected the suggestion that American exporters were inefficient, and declared that exporters here were not only conducting their operations on the most up-to-date rules but were justified in their course by the fact that America was today exporting in larger quantity than ever before and was maintaining to a large extent the gain she had made during the war.

Mr. McElroy said that it was untrue to say that American exporters side-tracked their foreign orders in favor of domestic business. The British, he said, had admitted that the greatest competitors they found in the race for world trade were American exporters. Export trade today, he stated, was not merely a temporary expedient.

Australian buyers who took goods from Canada had them shipped through the United States, because they found that Americans shipped goods more carefully, he said, and he gave concrete instances to back up his statement.

"American goods are gaining in favor everywhere," said Mr. McElroy, "and they are well packed and properly shipped to Argentina as well as to other parts. We hear that the American manufacturer exporter does not pack well or cater to the wishes of Latin American business houses. That may be true for some, but today there are many who have been in the export business for years who do what is right. And they give scrupulous attention to buyers' instructions. Packing has become almost a science, and the United States is far advanced in this."

Regarding the criticism that American exporters quote their prices f.o.b. factory while European firms quote c.i.f. Mr. McElroy said that some customers prefer it that way, but where necessary c.i.f. prices are quoted, but must be made from day to day, governed by exchange, and other conditions, according to circumstances.

Mr. Mahony said that the best testimony in favor of the American exporters was the fact that he was doing an ever-increasing business with all parts of the world.

The Christian Principles Of General Feng Yu-hsiang

IT probably is safe to say that the problem of General Feng Yu-hsiang is the most discussed subject in Christian missionary circles in China today. Discussions regarding the activities of the Christian General are not of course limited to the foreign and Chinese Christian communities in China: he is the man of the hour in the Republic and is being praised or damned depending upon the personal viewpoint or associations of the individual. One keen observer, a foreigner who has resided in China for many years and who knows Feng personally in a recent discussion of the General's coup at Peking used language which we have not heard since the World War. "Feng is a traitor, a hypocrite, a black-leg, a crook"—and so on into the unprintable, was this man's opinion. "If Feng didn't want to enter the war," said this man, "why didn't he say so at the beginning and resign his command? Why did he start out and lead his superiors to think that he was loyal and then double-cross them when he saw an opportunity for getting control of the Government?"

On the other side we have partisans of General Feng, men like Mr. Putnam Weale of the Far Eastern Times of Peking who hail the Christian General as the "savior of Peking"—and incidentally also the savior of Mr. Weale's newspaper which had been suppressed by General Wu Pei-fu but was permitted to resume publication immediately after General Feng entered the capital. Mr. Weale felt so good over General Feng's coup—and the release of the Times—that he printed a picture of the "savior" on the front page of his paper and in addition a dramatic story of several columns in length reciting the stirring events incident to the coup.

Thus we have the two lay viewpoints regarding the Christian General. Now for the "Christianity" phase of the discussion. Did General Feng act in a "Christian" manner when he turned on General Wu Pei-fu and President Tsao Kun and his other associates in the war when he returned to Peking and cut the ground from beneath their feet? This is the question which the missionaries and thousands of Chinese converts are discussing seriously; we may rest assured of that. One well known missionary in Peking, a pacifist who clashed with the ultra-patriots during the course of the World War out here, writes as follows in reference to General Feng:

"It is clear that the main idea of Christ's teachings is that of love, peace and concord among men. This distinguishes the Kingdom of God from human governments. The latter are always indulging in mutual hatred and warfare. Love between nations is a rare occurrence. General Feng and most of his officers and men are not merely known as Christians but are zealous for the faith. On the other hand in being summoned to take up arms against the forces of Fengtien they are acting in the employment of the Government whose orders they must obey. Thus General Feng and his men have two responsibilities, one religious and one political, the same as with Christians who are military in other countries. If one follows implicitly the demands of his religion he will abstain from warring with his fellow men. If he follows the orders of the state he must at times engage in war." The discussion, which apparently was written before the coup, ends with an appraisal of the Christianity of General Feng's troops which is of the highest character. General Feng's troops are genuine Christians, well disciplined, taught to help in public works, are strong and clean, free from disease and have none of the bad habits common to soldiers the world over and probably accentuated in China as was shown in the activities of the uncontrolled soldiers which raped and looted the countryside about Shanghai after the ending of fighting in this section.

Another foreigner, a prominent missionary in Shanghai, has also written the editor of The China Press a letter about General Feng, which in part is as follows:

"There are people who are trying to spread rumors to the report that Feng is dishonest, a hypocrite and all the rest. Of course, he has probably done things in the present situation that are not honorable, certainly that are not Christian, but we certainly had evidence enough during the World War of un-Christian acts committed by perfectly good Christian Generals, so it ill behooves any foreigner to throw mud at Feng on that score.

"He is a very conservative Christian and probably bigoted and all that. He certainly knows very little of politics and has had no experience in statesmanship and may possibly make a fool of himself, very likely will in the present crisis unless he has extremely able advisors who are also honest.

"Please understand me; I am not trying to back him up in his present move at all. I know nothing about it and I have no guess as to the outcome. But I do know something about Feng from a good many angles and covering a period of, say, eight years. I knew him pessonally when he was in Szechwan and I believe that he is trying his best to be a real, sincere Christian. And because of that fact I believe he has secured the marvellous loyalty of his troops and that he has himself courage that is not often found in Chinese leaders."

Our correspondent who wrote the above also told in his letter of a report spread in Shanghai several months ago by a certain noisy propagandist that there was evidence proving that General Feng was a hypocrite in that he had "squeezed" large sums of money which were on deposit in Peking banks. This report was investigated and the result was that the propagandist who spread the information was branded as a circulator of misinformation—to use a polite word.

No one of course knows the inner motives which inspired General Feng to take the sensational course which he followed and which has had the effect of paralysing the military efforts of the Chihli army and in all probability has put an end to the war. The fact that General Feng was not enthusiastic about the war from the very beginning was plainly evident in the news reports. This probably explained General Wu Pei-fu's long delay in Peking when his presence was demanded at the front. General Feng was undoubtedly fighting a desperate battle in his own mind as to the proper course to pursue. Apparently the urgings—or the promises of rewards—take it either way, induced him to enter the war. The job assigned to him of moving an army across an uncharted and flood impoverished countryside, probably was the most difficult of the war. While toiling through this wilderness, General Feng had an opportunity to do a lot of thinking—and meditating. Finally he made up his mind and returned to Peking. The rest of the story has been told.

Whether General Feng did right and acted in a Christian manner; whether he owed a greater duty to his country in stopping the war than he owed to his superiors in keeping it up are debatable questions. There are two schools of thought in China in reference to this unification business. The "unification-by-force" advocates and the "peace-by-conference" advocates. General Feng apparently changed from the former to the latter in the middle of the stream, so to speak. If he succeeds he will be hailed as a great man and the details forgotten. At least he has broken some ancient traditions and this is something in a land which lives in the past rather than in the present.

Other Views Than Ours On The War In China

THE NEW CHINESE MENACE

(Indianapolis, Ind, Star)

Reports from China that Chang Tso-lin, the war lord of Manchuria, has decided to enter the war against the Peking government indicate that hopes of localising the present hostilities around Shanghai are doomed and that soon all of the vast country may be aflame. This in itself might prove an ultimate blessing for the country. If the military governors were divided into two camps and the campaign fought out until one had gained a decisive victory a period of tranquility might follow which would be worth the price paid in life and property. At present the military governor of each province is virtually supreme in his own sphere and the central government helpless to enforce its decrees. Four-fifths of the taxes go to mantain these feudal armies, while education and transportation suffer.

The average American need not concern himself with the fortunes of the tuchuns and the efforts of one to drive out the present rulers in Shanghai and thus seize the rich revenue of that important commercial city. But behind the two rivals are other forces and influences at work. These have foreign ramifications which may threaten the continuance of the "open door" policy enunciated by our former secretary of state, John Hay, and maintained ever since as the keystone of America's Chinese policy. Russia is engaged in secret diplomatic manouvering in China and the Japanese scarcely can remain idle when events of such importance are happening so close to her shores.

The open door standard and the agreements reached at the Washington armament conference gave China the greatest opportunity it had ever had for overthrowing selfish foreign influences and attaining something approaching a national life. As the one unselfish friend China has had, the United States must exercise the most skillful diplomacy to preserve the gains already made. The Chinese revolution ended the graft and vacillation of the old Manchu dynasty at Peking, but failed to establish anything approaching centralised authority. The United States has maintained that its diplomatic relations can only be conducted through Peking in spite of the struggle Dr. Sun Yat-Sen has made for recognition of a southern government at Canton.

The American can only follow the major alliances of the present campaign. Gen. Lu defending Shanghai, is supported by Chang Tso-lin, who, for purposes of tempórary expediency, is upheld by Dr. Sun. The Peking government relies entirely upon Gen. Wu Pei-fu, the ablest military man in China and virtual head of the Chihli political party. It was Gen. Wu who defeated Chang Tso-lin when that Manchurian robber baron swept down from the north in his previous attempt to subjugate China. The latter was reported to be enjoying the moral and financial support of the Japanese. Behind the scenes, therefore, lies the peril of foreign domination rather than Chinese responsibility. The United States must thus be prepared to exercise its influence not only for the preservation of our legitimate trade, but for the freedom and independence of the Chinese themselves.

More Truth Than Poetry

BY S. E. KISER

THE NATION MAY SURVIVE

The boys, out at the edge of town,
Have played the seventh inning;
The native's stock is going down—
The home team isn't winning!
Loud groans are heard as Tommy Flynn
Strikes out with two on bases,
And local fights are starting in
About a dozen places,
While, unconcerned about baseball,
Ed. Marsh and Ezra Hicks
Are busy at the village hall
Discussing politics.

The Sewing Circle meets today
At Mrs. Amos Holley's;
The ladies have a lot to say
Concerning people's follies:
The way they slander Clara Hines,
Poor woman, is amazing,
And if there's anything in signs
Dot Warner's ears are blazing.
But why be worried, after all,
If Dot has misbehaved?
There's turmoil at the village hall,
The nation's being saved.

The home team straggles from the field
Defeated and dejected;
Dot Warner's record is revealed
And thoroughly dissected;
Beyond the town the sun sinks low,
The Western sky is ruddy,
And Ezra Hicks reels to and fro
With features that are bloody;
Ed. Marsh limps from the village hall,
As near dead as alive;
He lost four teeth, but, after all,
The nation may survive.

"BE PATIENT WITH GENERAL FENG"

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS:

Sir.—May I ask for a small place in your column to say a few words in connection with a great moral question associated with the recent coup d'etat brought about by General Feng Yu-hsiang during the quiet night of October 22nd?

Even since many criticisms have been thrown against him, and to his opponents, this action has been denounced as treacherous and rebellious. The whole crux of it all seems to have been based on the charge against him of lack of loyalty to Tsao Kun and Wu Pei-fu. What do we mean by loyalty anyhow? Loyalty may be taken to mean the willing and thoroughgoing devotion of a person to a cause. By a cause is meant that something which seems to the loyal person to be larger than his private self and which unites him with other persons by some social tie such as a public trust or a family trust and so forth. The loyal man is loyal because he has some cause to which he can be loyal and willingly devote himself. In the present war is there to be found in the person of Tsao Kun a righteous cause to which General Feng must hold firm unto death? In other words, does Tsao Kun deserve a display of self-sacrificing devotion from the Christian General? Certainly he does not. According to the report brought in by the daily papers Tsao Kun himself has made a confession of sin for having bribed his election to presidency, which is the prime cause of the bloody, suicidal war.

Tsao Kun may have been the personal benefactor of Feng in the past but that does not alter the reason why he should not rebel against him, if that rebellion is founded on righteous cause. The fact that Feng had the courage to rebel against the President without fearing the criticism of being ungrateful, speaks for itself that Feng is truly a patriot. Rebellion of this kind is often justified, and not without precedence in the history of China. The rebels of righteous causes have generally been praised, for example, Confucius commented, "The rebellion of Wu Wan against King Chu as in accordance with the will of God and in response to the wishes of the people." Again he said, "If there were no rebellion what could make the Emperor and princes take precaution and what could make them observe the law?"

According to a statement given out yesterday in the newspapers General Feng is quoted to have said that he is leading a revolution of the National Army against militarism. If such be the cause that drove him to action General Feng is truly the hero of the day and has at heart the welfare of the people. Thus we read in his circular telegram: "Since the outbreak in Kiangsu the whole National Army has been mobilised and thousands of lives expended, but for what do we fight?" This is just the question that people are asking and must be answered. Think of the general havoc wrought by the late Kiangsu-Chekiang war; the villages destroyed, homes bereft and people made penniless and helpless,—the cost is too great to be estimated. What is it all about? What is it all for? It is high time that we should call a halt to reason.

The people of the land, both foreigners and Chinese, have been crying for peace, and editors have not spared their pen and ink in denouncing the war as feudal, needless and suicidal. In his attempt to bring an end to needless hostilities which serve to no purpose but are ruining all China, has not General Feng voiced the general sentiment of the people? Is it therefore not unkind to turn against him and call him names—traitor, ingrate and what-not? Whether he is or is not the har facts must tell. But let us be patient and watch the developments of time.

Sincerely yours,
R. Y. Lo.

The Question Of A Master Star

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

"Is Vega the ruling star toward which our sun and its planets are advancing? If we travel in a great orbit around it, could astronomers compute the dimensions of that orbit, and the duration of time required to make the trip? As the whole creation is boundless, could it not be possible that our sidereal universe is moving around a still greater one existing somewhere, billions of miles away?—L. K."

Vega, the bright star in the constellation Lyra, is not a "ruling" star for our sun; it simply happens to lie very nearly in the direction in which the sun, with its planets, is travelling, at the present time. I say "at the present time," because we do not know that the sun's path in space is a straight line.

Besides, the exact direction of the sun's movement has not been discovered. Various points in the sky are indicated by different observers as the "apex" of the solar motion, i.e., the point toward which the sun is carrying the solar system. These points are many degrees apart, but they are all situated in the northern part of the sky, and the one which seems to be the most probable lies only a few degrees from Vega.

But these few degrees—say four or five—would correspond to a very great distance when the sun had arrived, with its planets, at the point of nearest approach to Vega. Say that they were then four degrees apart as seen from our present position in space. Since the distance of Vega is now probably at least 200,000,000,000,000 miles, the four degrees would represent a gap of about 14,000,000,000,000 miles between Vega and the sun, when the latter passed nearest to the star.

That would be something over half the distance between the sun and the star Alpha Centauri, which is known as the nearest to us, at present, of all the stars in the sky. But Vega is in absolute magnitude a far larger star than Alpha Centauri, so that it would shine in the heavens, when the sun had carried us twice as near to it as we now are to Alpha Centauri, with exceeding splendor, greatly surpassing that of Sirius, or any other star. The absolute luminosity of Vega is probably not less than one hundred times as great as the sun's. If we assume its mass to be proportionally large, its attraction upon the sun would be some 200 times greater than that now exercised by Alpha Centauri (ascribing to the latter twice the sun's mass); but even then, while it might perceptibly alter the direction of the sun's motion, it would, by no means, become the sun's ruler or master.

Considering the way in which the stars are distributed in space, it would not be possible for the sun to describe "an orbit around Vega." There are too many conflicting attractions in play. Not only the sun, but all of the other stars, including, of course, Vega itself, are in motion; and the speed of the sun—about twelve miles per second—is slow in comparison with that of some of the others. Instead of thinking of them as traveling in orbits, or a nature similar to that of the planetary orbits, we should rather picture the stars, in the imagination, as resembling the atoms of a rare gas moving about among one another by virtue of forces other than those of their mutual attraction.

Yet, no doubt, the stellar system as a whole is governed by the laws of gravitation. There are indications of systematic motions, like currents or eddies. Widely scattered groups of stars possess a common motion, traveling through space on parallel lines. The celebrated and most beautiful cluster, called the Pleiades, appear to be associated in this manner. But, on the other hand, discordant motions prevail among many of the stars forming the groups which we know as "constellations." Some of these, like the "Great Dipper," are "falling apart" in consequence of the divergent motions of the stars composing them. But while the actual motions of the stars are rapid—sometimes more than a hundred miles per second—yet they are so far away from us that in the course of a human lifetime no star changes its place in the sky sufficiently to be remarked except by the aid of delicate instrumental measurements.

The idea that the stellar system visible to us is not the only one in existence is entertained by many astronomers, but this is a subject that I have not room to discuss here.

Likes Estelle Because She Is Home-Maker

Wilmington, Delaware, September 14.—Over a honeydew melon the other day Jack Dempsey told of his romance with Estelle Taylor.

The story was related in the neat, homey residence of Miss Taylor's grandmother, Mrs. E. D. Boylan, while a crowd surged about the veranda for a peek at the champ and his beloved.

The time set for their probable marriage is June, 1926, but the champ added that a lot of things can happen between now and then. Two years in a matter of this kind may as well be two million.

"I am telling you," the big champ said, as he rubbed a stubby set of one-day-old whiskers, "because you borrowed an overcoat of mine 10 years ago and returned it. There are two or three other reasons, too. It is easy to deduce that Stell and I are in love."

LOVED LONG

The champion then sneaked over an unexpected wallop. He confided that he had been in love with "Stell" since she was 13 years old. She is 21 now. Love for "Stell" has glowed in the champion's fighting heart since the time when Estelle wore pigtails and when he was just one of the mob of bruisers in search of coffee and cakes.

Eight years have worked wonders for these two. Eight years ago Dempsey had just begun to dust off his trousers after long, venturesome rides in box cars. Today his nobby chauffeur trotted us over the smooth avenues in this attractive town in a luxurious Rolls-Royce roadster. It is as long as a Pullman and has wire wheels painted a gorgeous orange.

Eight years ago Estelle was learning to recite "Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight" in a New York dramatic school. They met through chance—Dempsey, the ex-hobo, and Stell, the elocution lass, with dark chestnut pigtails and a beautiful face. Since then Stell has climbed to fame in the cinema. Dempsey said:

"It was rather silly then, I thought to myself that I should be so struck by the face of a little girl. It seemed absurd, but that face just kept coming to my mind all the while that I was winning my way to the title.

TWO WOMEN

"We kept corresponding. I wrote plain, formal letters to that little girl, for I never would have thought of saying anything about love to anyone so young. And, as we both began to go up the ladder, we still wrote. The day I knocked Willard for a row of Kansas cyclones I thought of only two women—my mother and Stell. And I got wires back from both women that I loved. There never has been anybody else but Stell and probably never will be."

Dempsey hasn't changed at all since he put Willard on ice. Prize fighters, as a rule, are not the most amiable and attractive persons, but this big boy is an exception. He has color, courage and the open frankness of a kid. Success has not ruined him, as some of his critics have feared, and he has stayed clean and in good condition. If there is any credit to the game of "pugs," Jack Dempsey is it. Certainly he has had temptation thrown at him. Only a big man could come through as has Dempsey, unspoiled, generous, unassuming.

SQUARE CHAMPION

"Let's have a peek at your charmer," I said to Jack. We were sitting in the comfortable, but plain living room of Grandma Boylan. Jack lifted his 205 pounds off of a sofa in quicker time than he got up after Firpo had knocked him on his Western hip. He raced to the stairway and shouted:

"Come down, Stell—don't mind dolling up!"

"Stell" certainly is winsome. She was clad in a pretty, but not showy boudoir gown. Her dark eyes beamed as she saw Jack, even if he had not been to the barber's so early in the day. Jack left the room to make one of his continual front-door visits to greet crowds of youngsters, who worship this physical king. While the champ was doing his hallway roadwork, "Stell" said:

"This is not one of those stupid, maudlin, publicity-seeking things. We really did want to settle all this privately, but there is no denying how I feel about Jack. He is just like a boy for one thing, and he is a big, fine, clean human being. He doesn't know what malice or envy is. He is sensitive, too, when those who don't know suggest that Hollywood might have got to him.

"He is square. We have been friends for many years, and couldn't be anything else."

Jack told me he had met "Stell" first through Caspar Sharpless, ice cream magnate. He added:

"Maybe that's why I always have been fond of ice cream."

CAUSE OF DELAY

Regarding the delay in the marriage. Jack explained:

"We are both in public life. I will be in it until some tough young egg comes along and passes a set of knuckles to my chin. You know it may be done anytime. I probably will go into the ring twice again and at either of those times I may go down to stay. I have been knocked down, and I have been hit. They all go some day But, if at the end of June, 1926, I am not knocked for a set of false teeth, I plan to retire.

"By that time Stell, too, is planning to retire. She is going great now, and her last picture. 'The Alaskan,' shows just what she is capable of doing. She is really an artist, but that is not why I have chosen her to by my wife. I chose her because I love her and because she has a whale of a lot of sense and judgment.

"Stell will take care of me and my interest, you can gamble your overcoat—if you have borrowed another one recently—on that. And that's what I want in a woman—love, tenderness, care and sympathy. Of course, I am glad that Stell is beautiful, and I wish I had personal beauty to match hers; but I haven't even if they did straighten out my nose."

The marriage of the heavyweight champion is supposed to stir up as much interest as the marriage of a Prince of Wales occasions in Europe. For Dempsey, the prince of flails, is at last free to choose whomsoever he wants for his wife. No international relations depend on his choice. The kind of woman who is so chosen by the most expensive athletic figure in the world is of interest to many.

This is the kind of woman "Stell" is, as outlined by the doting champ, as he mulled with his right hand from the honeydew melon to his granite jaw:

"1—And she is, first of all, a home-maker.

"2—She has intelligence.

"3—She is generous and sympathetic.

"4—She is satisfied to give up a career for love.

"5—She is beautiful and healthy and loves babies."

DEMPSEY'S CODE

In these five points Dempsey says that beauty comes last, al-

DRESS

By Mary Marshall

Knitted Costumes Assume New Importance in Fashion

Queen Mary of England could hardly be regarded as a leader of fashion, and yet there is real fashion interest in the fact that right now for the first time she is wearing knitted materials. She has a soft blue suit and a mignonette suit made from wool knitted with silk, each being bound with silk in the new manner that is considered "quite tailored" in effect. With each of these two suits there is a matching silk blouse made of the silk with which the suit is bound.

The reason for the significance of this is that it shows that knitted suits and frocks and other garments have come to be so conservative and conventional that even the Queen of England, who is so reactionary in her mode of dress that she wears her skirts nearly touching the ground when fashion says from twelve to fifteen inches off the ground, and who still wears her hats so high on her royal head that her ears and forehead show, has at last taken up with knitted apparel.

In other words, there is no longer anything at all informal or faddy about knitted apparel. Nor is it limited to actual sport attire. Among the season's innovations are knitted shawls, some of them with picturseque colorful designs, making them suitable for evening. There are long coats and medium-length coats that bear no suggestion whatever to the knitted sweater, and there are frocks and suits that are eminently suitable for street wear in town, possessing none of that informality of cut that might suggest suitability only for country sports.

The sketch shows one of the new two-piece frocks of this species—a skirt and overblouse of beige wool, with red, white and black bands on sleeves and edges of blouse and skirt. There are two diamond-shape pockets, one on the blouse, one on the skirt, made from the red, white and black banding.

This skirt and overblouse type of garment is very much liked among knitted garments. Newer and equally well liked are ensemble sets consisting of a knitted frock with threequarter coat to match.

Two-piece knitted frock of beige with red, white and black trimming band, which is ingeniously made into two patch pockets.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

BY MARY MARSHALL

ONCE UPON A TIME

Among Teutonic people in the middle ages "the woman who had struck her husband was compelled to ride on an ass though the streets, seated backward, and holding the astonished animal's tail!" Apparently the man who struck his wife was allowed to go scot free. And everything in the colonies in this country the woman with a shrewdish tongue was punished in the stocks, pillory or ducking stool.

ARE YOUR STANDARDS TOO HIGH?

The trouble with a great many young American housewifes is that they are trying to keep up a standard of living that is far too high for their circumstances. There are countless young married women trying to keep house without a maid in a manner that, if done consisently, would require at least two, and there are women who with one maid try to carry out a program that would be suitable for a household of two or three servants.

Take white enamel woodwork, highly polished mahogany or nearmahogany furniture, highly waxed floors—the ambition of most young housewives. A generation or so ago no one attempted such luxuries who did not have servants to keep them in condition. Then too, the present-day dining room, apart from the kitchen, was originally possessed only by persons who kept servants. A generation or so ago the servantless family ate in the kitchen. We read with dismay and surprise of the enormous amount of work that the colonial mothers accomplished, soap making, candle dipping, stocking knitting, spinning, weaving, brewing and the rest, and we wonder how it was that those women of long ago had time or courage to attempt so much. If they looked at our houses with their numerous pieces of polished furniture, their waxed floors and white woodwork, they would feel as much concern for us as we do for them.

One reason why a vacation at a summer or seaside cottage is usually such a source of rest and relief to all concerned, is that the summer cottage is built with a minimum of things that need attention.

DON'T BRAG OF SUCCESS

Isn't it true that you like to talk of your successes?

It pleases you to tell how you carried through certain deals.

You are not averse to saying that what you did was sharp practice but you kept within the law.

Do you ever stop to think what sort of opinion is gained from your talk?

Would your friends trust you if they were on the opposite side in a business transaction?

Because they know that what you do borders so closely on the dishonest they expect that anytime you may overstep the boundaries of fair play.

Telling so much of your affairs it is likely that some may miscarry.

Even among friends there is more or less rivalry and of adopting the course which made the other fellow successful when friendship is concerned with money deals, friendship often has to take a back seat.

It is well enough to give a friend good advice, if you think it would aid him, but dangerously unwise to tell your would-be friends, how you manage and what your earnings may be in such undertakings.

Wu Pei-fu Unruffled As He Returns To Tientsin To Prepare New Defense

Chihli Commander, Following Coup Of Feng, Shows No Outward Traces Of Mental Anxiety; Counts On Strength Of Reinforcements

BY LAWRENCE IMPEY
(Special Correspondent for THE CHINA PRESS)

Tientsin, Oct. 27.—It was on the evening of the twenty-third that Marshal Wu Pei-fu heard of the coup effected by General Feng Yu-hsiang in seizing Peking, and it was about the same time that an unconfirmed rumor to this effect came to the ears of your correspondent, he being unable to verify it till the next morning, when the Generalissimo had already departed on a hasty visit to the Shihmenchai front.

The 24th passed uneventfully in the main, the writer himself spending most of the day in a trip to the Shihmenchai sector in order to obtain an idea as to its possibilities for a temporary defensive, supposing that Wu Pei-fu should decide to rush south and attack Feng Yu-hsiang.

In the evening there arrived a detachment of the Loyal North Lancashire Regiment from Shanhaikwan, these being detailed to Chinwangtao in order to guard British nationals there in case of serious trouble. As all the Chinese troops had already disembarked from the transports and everything was orderly there seemed little to apprehend unless it should happen that the defensive on the Shihmenchai-Shanhaikwan fronts gave way after the departure of the Marshal.

TROOPS ARE IGNORANT

It appeared to the writer that the troops knew little or nothing of what had occurred elsewhere, though doubtless propaganda would soon get busy with the news, and as there was an ample supply of ammunition of all kinds for a fortnight or three weeks there seemed no reason why such a debacle should take place. If, however, the line did yield and any considerable number of troops endeavored to pass through Chinwangtao foreign settlement in order to board the transports it is obvious that a difficult international situation might conceivably arise, calling for precautionary measures on the part of the detachments of troops stationed there by the Powers.

During the early part of the 25th, Marshal Wu Pei-fu was again absent visiting the fronts, and after his return there were conferences with General Chang Fu-lai, who commands at Shihmenchai, and General Peng Tso-hsin, who holds the Shanhaikwan sector. Thus it was not until late in the afternoon that the writer was able to obtain an interview of three or four minutes with the over-worked Generalissimo, who certainly shows no signs of the mental strain which he cannot but be undergoing in the present trying circumstances.

"It will only mean a little more work for me," he remarked to one of his entourage, and the same idea prevailed in the conversation which he held with the writer.

Marshal Wu pointed out that the fronts at Shanhaikwan and Shihmenchai were very strong and quite suitable for defensive be in no position to assume a strong offensive after the heavy losses he had suffered during the last few days. This is probably true, for the shelling has grown noticeably less from the Fengtien lines both today and yesterday, while the retreat of some six or seven li which has been forced upon them has not strengthened their position from the point of view of attack.

The writer was also informed that a note was being forwarded to the Diplomatic Body in Peking assuring them that Marshal Wu had the situation well in hand and that no danger to foreign property or lives need be apprehended. The whole atmosphere of the staff car was optimistic and the writer left more than ever convinced that in Wu Pei-fu the country possesses a man of determination and quickness of decision, characteristics which are of the utmost value in a struggle the issues of which are so confused.

The interview took place at six and shortly after nine o'clock the final whistle sounded from the platform of Chinwangtao, and the expedition was on its way south, preceeded and followed by trainloads of troops and munitions.

WELCOME AT TIENTSIN

Nothing eventful occurred until our arrival at Tientsin about mid-day, bands, police and officials being drawn up to greet the train in style, while little groups of foreign officers and soldiers were not absent from the scene. The situation was then reviewed up to date in a discussion with the staff, and it appeared that some of General Feng Yu-hsiang's troops had patrolled the railway line to a point some way beyond Fengtai, but that on finding Wu Pei-fu's men in possession of Langfang they had withdrawn again, the railway line having been torn up by them in the neighborhood of Fengtai.

No information received showed that the Christian General had any further support than his own divisions, so that it might be doubted if he could make any attack in force on Wu's position, while if he were to decide to merely hold tight in Peking the whole movement would probably collapse from inertia. Added to this there was a report that General Li Ching-lin had come over from the Mukden side, the President having offered to nominate him as Inspector General of the Eastern Provinces, in place of Chang Tso-lin. This latter rumor should, in the writer's opinion, be viewed with considerable reserve, for no confirmation of its truth is obtainable up to date and the Fengtien troops were certainly still in position before Shanhaikwan and Shihmenchai on the night of the 26th, showing no inclination to retreat unless forced.

Matters in Tientsin itself appear to be in considerable confusion, the Chinese population flocking into the concession for shelter from the apprehended war, but on the other hand the troops here are loyal to Marshal Wu and he therefore holds the Tientsin-Pukow line open to bring up reinforcements from the south.

On the Peking-Hankow line Feng Yu-hsiang is in control as far as Changhsintien, and therefore the Loyang and Paotingfu quota that have been ordered up will have to go round by some circuitous route to join their commander-in-chief in Tientsin or Langfang. How the position stands in Peking one will know better tomorrow, for it has been decided to attempt to send through an Allied train at nine o'clock, though it is uncertain whether General Feng will permit it to pass or what its commander will do if he is confronted with a refusal.

The writer would not imagine that Marshal Wu at the moment is in command of sufficient forces to push through a direct attack on the insurgents, and it appears more probable that a halt will be called for a couple of days to allow reinforcements to arrive and to enable him to become thoroughly au fait with the situation, though even this cannot be predicted with any certainty, for in China it is "the unexpected that always happens," as this war has proved once again.

though it it is "a fine thing to have it." Those who always have pictured Dempsey as hankering after a hectic marriage to a Broadway butterfly, or a Hollywood highflier, must be amazed to learn the champ's real ideas on the subject of home and family.

Dempsey added:

"You know I am glad for the hard knocks that I got. They made me champion. The rough breaks taught me to be satisfied with less than I might get and to appreciate things. I often wish I were highly educated or smart, but I realise that that sort of thing is the property of others. I have tried hard to learn, and I have tried to keep clean and worthy of a woman who might some day consent to marry me, even though I had been a boxer. I am repaid now, and, no matter what sort of a game boxing might be, I can look anybody's kid in the eye when he shakes my hand."

Everywhere Dempsey goes he is mobbed. You remember Charles Dana Gibson's pen picture of "The Champion" years ago—it showed old Jim Jeffries, in a five-gallon operat hat, being followed by kids. But Jeff, popular as he was, couldn't hold a lantern to Jack. He is never cheaty. He shakes hands more frequently than Japan does with earthquakes. As he was waiting for his car in a garage, all the boys mitted the big boy. One mechanic, grimy and oil-smeared, was overheard by Jack when he said:

NOT FINICKY

"Just my luck to have my hands so dirty. Gee! but I'd like to mitt him."

Jack, nicely manicured, stuck out his money paw and laughed:

"Come on, son, why not? I've been dirtier than that."

The town champion happened in and gave Dempsey the up-and-down. After looking at the six feet and one inch of iron limb and muscle, the town biffer remarked:

"They wanted me to go two rounds with you, but I ain't as ignorant as I look."

"Well, now," Dempsey said, "I think you would do mighty good at that. Everybody has to start some place."

Dempsey left for Atlantic City, with Stell, to see the beauty contest. As he was being driven through the crowd, he shouted back:

"There's only one beauty contest for me, and it has been settled. I've given you the low-down, so if you don't announce it right, you will be fired as my equerry—and maybe socked, too!"

Dempsey will be here for two months, off and on. His feet get itchy if they are hooked too long to one spot. He probably will go house hunting in Jersey, as he plans to get himself and Stell a comfortable bungalow and garden, with plenty of flowers in that State by the time June, 1926, rolls around.

Stell, who weighs 125 pounds, beamed sincerely at the king of sock.
